GREEN FAST

Civic engagement isn't only about helping people, it includes helping the environment, building respect, and learning through service.

We divided our time to be utilized for two activities:

Plantation
Labour Day Service

Task 4

Plantation

SDGs addressed

SDG 13: Climate Action – by planting trees that help absorb carbon dioxide and combat climate change.

SDG 15: Life on Land – by supporting biodiversity and encouraging care for terrestrial ecosystems.

What we learnt

What we learnt

SUSTAINABILITY

PRACTICES

Through planting plants, we learned the importance of adopting sustainable habits that reduce our environmental impact and contribute to a greener, more sustainable future.

CONNECTION WITH

NATURE

By engaging with nature, we developed a deeper appreciation for how plants are essential in maintaining the health of our planet and its ecosystems.

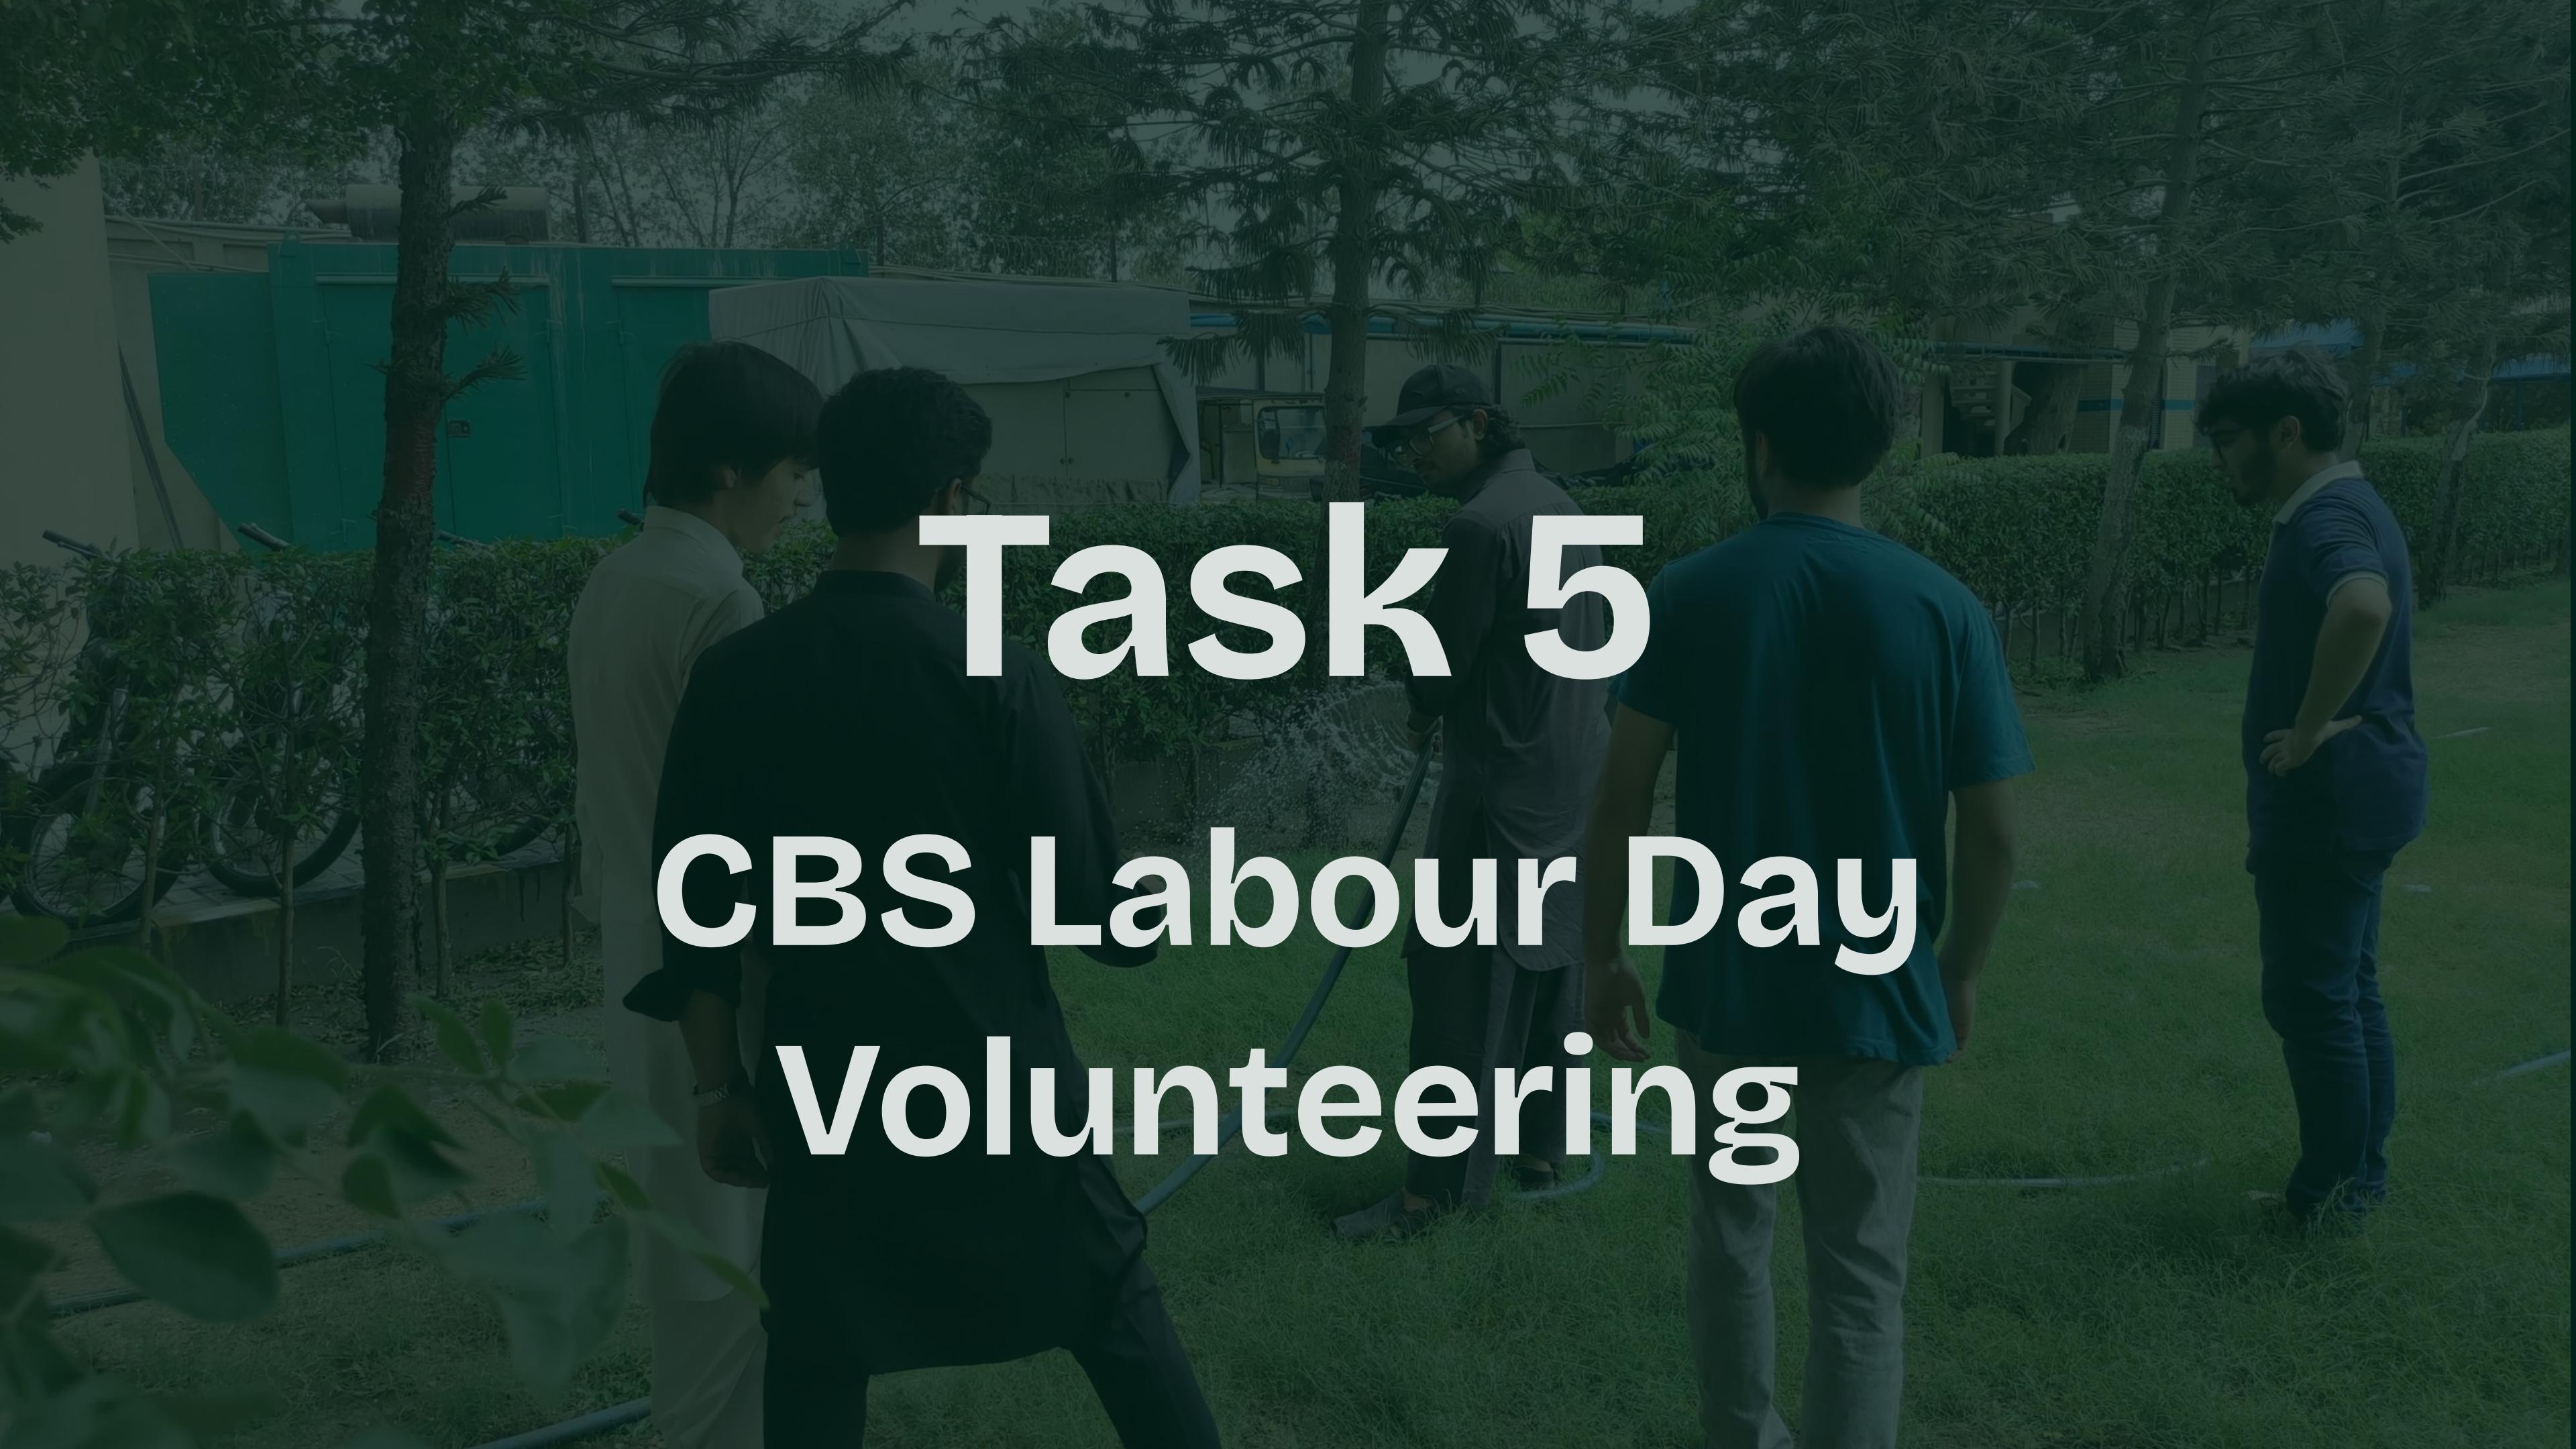

PERSONAL

RESPONSIBILITY

We understood the significance of taking responsibility for our actions, realizing how our care for plants and the environment can create positive changes in the world around us.

Some shots

A photograph showing a group of approximately seven people in a garden setting. They are focused on trimming a large, dense hedge with electric hedge trimmers. The scene is outdoors with trees and a building visible in the background.

What we learnt

What we learnt

SENSE OF EMPATHY

By assisting university staff, we developed empathy and gained a new perspective on the physical effort and commitment required in everyday tasks that are often overlooked.

DIGNITY OF LABOR

We learned to value every form of work equally—whether it's serving food, cleaning, or gardening—and understood the importance of treating all workers with respect and appreciation.

CIVIC ENGAGEMENT

This activity strengthened our sense of social responsibility, showing us how small acts of service can build stronger communities and promote a culture of care and cooperation.
